SEEN IN NEW YORK?
Binghamton, N. Y., April 28 — (AP)—A report that John Dillinger, object of America's man hunt, and several members of his mob were in Binghamton last night stirred police and Sheriff's deputies into activity today. Representatives of the Sheriff's office undertook an immediate pursuit, but no trace of the suspects was found.

A chiropractor named McCann reported to police at 11:10 last night that two automobiles, one bearing Illinois and the other Wisconsin registration plates, and carrying six men and three women, stopped in front of the Marquette hotel on Court Street. The cars were headed east, and drew up on the wrong side of the street at the hotel. One of the men motioned to a hotel employee, and ordered drinks for four of the party. After paying for the liquor the party broke quickly away in an easterly direction.

McCann's suspicions were aroused. He told the police he saw in the automobiles what looked like sawed-off shot guns, and he thought the motorists were Dillinger and his gang. He said he was not able to get the registration number of the Illinois car, but that the plates on the Wisconsin car bore the number, 10649.

Two More Alleged Bremer Kidnapers Held

CHAS. ALBRIGHT PASSED AWAY AT HOME YESTERDAY

Well Known Retired Employee of I. C. Victim Heart Trouble

Charles G. Albright, who almost 50 years ago entered the employ of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, passed away quietly at his home, 629 North Dixon avenue Friday afternoon at 3:30. Those who knew him most intimately had despaired of his recovery from an illness with heart trouble with which he had been a sufferer for many weeks and which had confined him to his home.

"Charlie" served the Illinois Central as station agent at the north side passenger station continuously from September 1887 until Nov. 1, 1932. With his son Lawrence he spent last winter visiting in Florida. They had planned to return to Dixon late in the spring, but a collapse necessitated his early return to his home. His condition grew much worse and little hope was entertained for his recovery. He lapsed into unconsciousness Thursday evening, his life passing out as he slept peacefully yesterday afternoon.

Born Near Freeport
Charles G. Albright was born on a farm near Freeport in Stephenson county, August 14, 1864. He entered the service of the Illinois Central as an agent and operator in 1886 and in this capacity was transferred to the North Dixon station in September 1887, where he served his employers faithfully up until the time of his being retired on pension two years ago. During the long years of faithful service, he had observed many developments and advancement in railroading, from the wood-burners of the late '80's to the present mogul type locomotives. Likewise he experienced many changes in the operation and dispatching of trains over the system in the development of telegraphy and telephone.

He was united in marriage to Miss Mary Burns on June 6, 1888 and to this union two sons were born, William, who with his mother predeceased the father and husband in death, and Lawrence who is surviving. One brother, Dr. James Albright, and a sister, Miss Mary Albright, both of Freeport, also survive. Two sisters and three brothers have preceded him in death.

CHICAGO WARD BOSS HELD AS RANSOM HOLDER

J. J. McLaughlin Is Alleged to Have Part of Bremer Ransom

BULLETIN
Chicago, April 28 — (AP)—John J. McLaughlin, Jr., was taken into custody on the Board of Trade floor today by federal agents hunting part of the $200,000 ransom paid to the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul.

McLaughlin is the 17-year-old son of the veteran west side politician arrested last night on a warrant charging conspiracy to possess part of the Bremer ransom.

The elder McLaughlin told federal men his son kept a safety deposit box, and the son, an employee of the Rosebaum Grain Company, was detained on the theory the missing money might be found in the box.

Chicago, April 28 — (AP)—John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, a politician, was arrested last night on a suppressed warrant charging him with conspiracy in possessing part of the Edward Bremer $200,000 ransom.

McLaughlin was named in one of the warrants issued after the arrest yesterday of William E. Vidler, in whose possession the U. S. Bureau of Investigation found $2,665 in $5 and $10 bills that were identified as part of the money paid the kidnapers several months ago. His arrest was announced this morning by Department of Justice agents, who said he would be arraigned later today.

Under Indictment
McLaughlin is already under indictment for conspiracy to possess part of the loot of the $250,000 mail robbery on a downtown Chicago street Dec. 6, 1932, in which he was linked as a "fence" or a confederate with two men now dead—Gus Winkler, notorious gangster, and Edgar B. Lebensberger.

Lebensberger was found shot to death, supposedly a suicide, in the richly appointed Lake Shore Drive suite where Winkler was a frequent visitor. His death occurred about the time the government made public its indictment of McLaughlin, Lebensberger and others for participation in the robbery or disposition of the loot.

Vidler was captured in a gambling house yesterday. The currency he carried was declared by government men to be the first recovered of the $200,000 Bremer ransom.

They predicted the arrest would result in a quick roundup of the Bremer kidnapers, and McLaughlin's followed within a few hours.

Tax Penalty Date May Be Extended to June 1: Up to Gov.

Springfield, Ill., Apr. 28 — (AP)—The penalty date on taxes, which is now May 1, will be extended to June 1 if Governor Horner signs a bill which was passed by the House yesterday.

The bill, passed by the Senate some time ago, was rescued from the hopper by the House just before adjournment late yesterday afternoon and passed without difficulty.

The Governor is expected to sign the measure and probably will do so before Tuesday, May 1.

Employees of the Dixon State hospital in a large force, beat down a grass fire about noon today which for a time threatened to spread into Hazelwood, the estate of Charles Walgreen. A force of men were burning grass and weeds on the state property when the wind whipped the flames over a wide area and was swept toward Hazelwood. Other employees and working patients were sent out to reinforce the crew and the flames were extinguished before any damage was done.

Tucson Authorities Wait Report From Heavily Armed Detail Which Left On Mysterious Mission Late Last Night

No Word is Received From Kidnapers of Six-Year-Old

Tucson, Ariz., April 28 — (AP)—The dash of heavily armed officers for an unannounced destination added mystery today to the quest for kidnapers of six-year-old June Robles, missing for the fourth day after she was spirited away while returning from school.

While Sheriff's deputies were on their mysterious mission, two men questioned in Phoenix for three hours were released this morning when Tucson authorities expressed satisfaction with the explanation of their movements since the girl vanished.

Authorities awaited word from the group of officers who sped away by automobile from the Pima county court house late last night. They declined to disclose their destination or purpose. All were heavily armed.

Two Suspects Freed
Roy Morris, 35, who originally gave his name as George R. Graham, and John R. Pattie, 48, were picked up at a Phoenix automobile camp for questioning because their automobile answered one of the descriptions of a car used by men who made inquiries at June's school the day before she was abducted. After three hours of questioning they were released.

Authorities were kept busy denying the many rumors which kept the city alive with a variety of stories regarding the kidnapping. Chief among the reports which met prompt denials was one that the little brown-eyed girl had been returned home, a reduced ransom paid.

Child Not Returned
Officers reiterated that June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Robles and granddaughter of Bernabe Robles, pioneer cattleman, had not been returned home. As police requested the army of volunteer searches to stand aside and let the kidnapers communicate with the parents if they desired, interest centered in an intermediary named to contact the child snatcher.

The intermediary, selected by Bernabe Robles, at whose reputed wealth the ransom demands are believed aimed, was not identified.

STRIKES STOP NEWSPAPERS IN PITTSBURGH, PA.

Mailing Room Workers Walkout in Defiance Nat. Union

Pittsburgh, April 28 — (AP)—Torn newspapers littered the streets of downtown Pittsburgh today, but few were for sale on the news stands.

The cause of the scarcity was the strike of mailing room employees on the city's three newspapers—the Post-Gazette, the Sun-Telegraph and the Press.

Disregarding the orders of their national union heads, the men walked out yesterday demanding the restoration of a 10 per cent pay cut. Gathering about the offices of the Press and the Sun-Telegraph, both evening papers, strike sympathizers halted trucks, dumping the papers in the streets. Both papers suspended publication after issuing early editions.

As trucks sped away from the Post-Gazette last night, with the early editions of morning papers, men swarmed over the vehicles ripping the papers apart and flinging them to the pavements.

Strikers crashed the offices of the Post-Gazette, damaging and removing mailing room equipment. State police were called early today and took up positions around the three newspaper plants. City and county police also were on duty at the plants.

Meanwhile, the truck drivers joined in the walkout. Their leaders said the drivers would also quit at the Press and the Sun-Telegraph later in the day.

SUDDEN DEATH ENDED FLIGHT OF FUGITIVES

Small Posse Killed Pair Fleeing from San Quentin

Victorville, Calif., April 28 — (AP)—Sudden death at the hands of a shoot-out posse of desert folk ended the flight of two escaped San Quentin convicts, one of whom was characterized by authorities as second only to John Dillinger as a desperado.

In a running exchange of gunfire three miles south of this little community, death came quickly to Wanda T. Stewart, 29, and Walter H. Weyth, 40. The two had slugged their way out of San Quentin prison Thursday.

The convicts were trapped by a hastily-summoned band, composed of a Deputy Sheriff and three deputized civilians, as they drove toward Victorville from San Bernardino where a short while before they had released two policemen, whom they kidnapped in San Rafael and forced to accompany them on a wild ride that led through Death Valley.

In Police Car
Informed of the release of the two policemen at San Bernardino Deputy Sheriff R. Stanley Sneider, with three civilians, Lou Miller, M. M. Black and Carl McNew, drove south to meet the escaping convicts. The fugitives rode in a police car which they had taken from their kidnap victims.

An automobile with a red light loomed ahead of Sneider, and sped by him and his deputies. Sneider ordered the automobile around and gave chase. As the deputy's car gained ground the fugitives opened fire, which was returned.

After a chase of nearly half a mile, the fugitives' car crashed into an embankment. Both the occupants were dead. None of the pursuers was injured.

FUGITIVE FROM CHESTER PRISON CROSSED RIVER

He and Companion Escaped Through Sewer Yesterday

BULLETIN
Chester, Ill., April 28 — (AP)—Reports from Springfield, Ill., that Randal Norvell, kidnaper who escaped yesterday from Southern Illinois penitentiary here, was cornered in the Missouri side of the Mississippi river, were refuted today by Warden J. E. Raegen. Warden Raegen said there had been no recent developments in the search for Norvell.

Springfield, Ill., Apr. 28 — (AP)—A report that Randal Norvell, kidnaper who escaped from Southern Illinois penitentiary last night, had been cornered on the Missouri side of the Mississippi river was received today by A. L. Bowen, director of Public Welfare.

Bowen did not have details on where Norvell had been located. His information came from Warden J. E. Raegen of the Chester prison. Belief that two employees, whose names he did not have, would be discharged for negligence in connection with the escape was expressed by Bowen.

The Director planned to go to Chester this afternoon to confer with the Warden.

ESCAPED YESTERDAY

Chester, Ill., April 28 — (AP)—Another midwest criminal, Randal Norvell, sometime aviator, bondsman, gambler, kidnaper and kidnaper and finally a "lifer"—roamed free today, another fugitive testimonial, like John Dillinger, to the vulnerability of prison bars.

On both sides of the Mississippi river officers hunted Norvell, "brains" of the August Luer kidnapers of last July, and his companion, James O'Connell, who crawled through a sewer yesterday to escape from the Southern Illinois penitentiary.

Hours after the two disappeared from a prison machine shop, Warden J. E. Raegen received reports that Norvell, still wearing his prison garb, had been seen near Perryville, Mo., across the Mississippi. The men apparently separated after rowing across the river.

Crawled in Sewer

The two men, both through prisoners, made their way through a set of steel bars in the machine shop to enter a tunnel, used to house plumbing. Crawling, through the narrow passageway, they reached the prison yard, entered the sewer and wormed their way 400 yards to its outlet in the Mississippi river.

Norvell had been on detail in the machine shop with 150 other prisoners for several weeks. The exact hour of the escape could not be fixed. The absence of the two was not discovered until the inmates were "counted in" for last night's meal.

One of Six Convicted

Norvell, probably the most colorful of the six who stood trial for the abduction of Luer, 77-year-old Alton banker and meat packer, was one of three to receive a life sentence. The others were Percy Mitchell, 31, and Charles Lillian Hensen, 41, and Mrs. Mike Musiala, at whose home Luer was kept prisoner, sentenced to 20 years; Mrs. Chessen's husband, Charles Chessen, and Christ Nicola Getcho, five years each.

Luer, ill with a heart ailment, was taken from his home last July 10 by two men and a woman. For six days he was kept blindfolded in a cellar on Musiala's farm, finally being released after ransom negotiations failed.

Drivers' License Law Will Be Asked

Springfield, Ill., Apr. 28 — (AP)—Drivers license laws will be proposed at the next regular session of the General Assembly if a resolution adopted yesterday by the Conference on Illinois Highway Safety is carried out. ENACTMENT NRA
BILL IN STATE
VERY DOUBTFUL

Is Considered Unlikely
Horner's Measure
Will Get Votes

Springfield, Ill., April 28—(AP)—Republican legislators haven't been able to kill the state NRA bill, but the Democrats haven't demonstrated enough strength to pass it.

Long hours of partisan oratory in the House brought a preliminary victory for the Democrats, 67 to 50, on a straight party vote, yesterday afternoon.

The next test will come Tuesday, when administration supporters will attempt to send the bill to the Senate, a process that will require ten additional votes for the NRA. They probably will be difficult to obtain.

Every Republican who voted lines up in opposition to the NRA as an effort was made to kill the bill by striking the enacting clause the minority, forcing the Democrats to bring up the bill after two days of delays, then lost the day as the bill was amended to meet the wishes of Governor Horner.

Democrats called for support of President Roosevelt as well as the NRA.

Center Fire on NRA
Republicans, avoiding any personal attack on the President, centered their fire on the NRA and its codes, arguing that they should not be made part of Illinois law as a prelude to state enforcement.

In the unit voting, twelve Democrats and 21 Republicans were either absent or silent. Among these were the Republicans allied with union labor, including Reuben Soderstrom of Streator, president of the state Federation of Labor.

Allen, Collins Opposed
These Republican labor votes may be forced to vote with the Democrats in approval of the NRA if they are to continue in the good graces of union labor which is supporting the measure.

The bill still has the emergency clause, but this is expected to be dropped Tuesday, since Republican opposition will make it impossible to get the requisite two-thirds majority.

The Democrats have only 79 House members, while the constitutional majority of 77 will be needed for the bill. As a result, unless some Republicans desert their leaders it will be extremely difficult to get the NRA measure to Senate.

Representatives Henry Allen and Dennis Collins of the 35th district voted to strike out the enacting clause, while John P. Devine of Dixon vote to sustain the bill.

American Fashions of Long Ago

The simple, yet neatly made costumes of the present day mark a distinct contrast to the complicated costumes of the early American life.

There are a few of us who will recall the age of bustles and elaborately flounced hooped skirts which necessitated shoulder straps of elastic ribbon to support the great weight. Close-fitting sleeves had large capes at the top and high collars frequently edged with deep lace closely encircled the throat.

How ornate milady's bonnet must have looked with its trimming of feathers, golden poppies, and roses.

In contrast to the long full skirts came the short skirts of 1921. These were worn by all women irrespective of age, height, and weight. The women of sixty, fifty, and twenty were wearing the abbreviated costume formerly restricted to the growing girl of ten or twelve years. Accompanying the short skirt came the unbridled use of cosmetics. The "vanity case" with its powder, rouge, and lipstick enjoyed a rearing rivaling that of Marie Antoinette. Then followed bobbed hair and the "flapper" made her bow over the foot-lights of fashion.

If "variety is the spice of life," the world of today has been well seasoned. So numerous have been the modes introducing wide variations in costume, and so immediate their adoption, that only one conclusion can be drawn—Dame Fashion still rules the world of dress. Her way is so universal that to be out of the fashion is to be out of the world.

Household Hints for Average Family

What salt will do—
1. Salt and soda are excellent for bee stings and spider bites.
2. Salt used in sweeping carpets keeps out moths.
3. Salt thrown on low coal fire will revive it.

Cakes—
Weights and measures just and true.
Oven of even heat.
Well heated pans and quiet nerves.
Success will be complete.

To keep sandwiches fresh—
Dip a cloth into water and wring out dry and cover sandwiches with the cloth.
Onions—
Peeled under water will not affect the eyes.
To cut marshmallows and dried fruits use a floured scissors.
To prevent nuts and fruits from sinking in cake, beat before rolling in flour and adding to cake batter.
To cut very fresh bread easily, heat the knife which should be sharp.
To prevent filling from soaking in pie crust, dust over bottom crust with a mixture of flour and sugar before adding fruit or other filling.
To separate a head lettuce when the leaves are tightly grown together, hold under running water. The force of the water separates them without breaking them.

Highlights of Today's Fashions

Spring again! and everyone is selecting new sport costumes. Because sports are something all of us are interested in, we will see what the hit-of-the-year is in sport frocks, first. The perfect golfing frock has the shirtwaist and, of course, it is made of a cotton stripe or plaid, stripes preferred. Convertible necklines that zip up or down, plaits, and pockets complete the frock. Capes for frocks are newer than jackets and two-way blouses, to be worn over the skirt or tucked in, are also popular.

On the beach, flannel slacks and seersucker skirts are popular, also, shorts and a printed kerchief. Frocks of white with bright spots of color in hat or neckline are correct for tennis.

New afternoon dresses feature the three-quarter length sleeves, cowl necklines, cartwheel hat, and since the jabot is all the go, our dresses now have hem-length jabots. Sheer voiles and other cottons prevail. Heavy sheer jackets on the tailor-dress and town dresses are smart, and another thin, tailored frock is the double-breasted fashion.

After a whole day of sheer summer cottons, we spend our evening in cotton. Low necks, skirts full at the ankles, and, of course, evening gowns are the ruffly gowns. Seersucker is the newest for evening wear. Other smart evening dresses are of organdie, dotted swiss, and Paris even uses gingham checks for evening.

There is something new in bows, too, the cats-whiskers bow, narrow, straight, and stiff. Here are a few types in accessories, too. Gloves are of organdie, printed silk and pique, with bags to match. Hats and scarfs or collars also match.

The last word in summer fabrics is the sanforized shrunk. This is pre-shrunk material which will not shrink in size, shape, or length, no matter how many it is laundered.

To go with the sanforized shrunk materials are the anti-crease fabrics. These resist and recover from wrinkles quickly. Cottons can be worn all day without a wrinkle showing. If materials are taken out and hung up overnight, after being tightly packed, wrinkles will quickly fade away. They wash nicely and need not be laundered so often because they are crease-resisting, which eliminates musing to a great extent. These fabrics are in all fashionable and popular weaves and colors.

Ripplesheen is a new cotton fabric with a lustrous finish and can be used for dresses for many occasions.

The bougie type of fabrics are made with an open weave, and they are new and smart. Cool and airy, dresses for sports and afternoon wear are easily made from this washable cotton fabric.

The Short Story: A Family Crisis

"Nellie, has Pat come yet?" called Mr. Brown as he arrived home from the office at five o'clock on a drizzly, disagreeable afternoon.

"No, dear," came a far-off answer from the kitchen. "Just sit down and take off your wet shoes and dry your feet before the fire until he comes."

Ah, a sound on the porch! Mr. Brown leaped eagerly to his feet and rushed to open the door.

"What's this, Dad, a royal welcome?" cried his son, John, as he attempted to enter. "Well, aren't you going to let me in? I'm getting all wet out here in the rain. Say, what's the matter? You haven't seen a ghost, have you?"

"Don't be silly, son. I thought you were Pat. He is late tonight."

"Oh, Well, don't let that worry you, he'll be here sooner or later," John replied as he ran upstairs to his room.

The elder Brown padded slowly back to the davenport in his stocking feet. After settling himself comfortably, he lit a cigar and began to smoke it thoughtfully to curb his mounting impatience.

What was keeping that boy? He was always on time and never failed to come. Well—oh, there he is!

At the door again, Mr. Brown threw it open gleefully, to the surprise of his young daughter, Mary.

"So kind of you, Sir Walter—why, Daddy, what in the world are those shreds hanging from your mouth? Don't tell me it is your cigar!"

"Oh, yes, yes, to be sure, Mary. I must have chewed it up in my nervousness. Pat isn't here yet."

"That's too bad, Daddy, but you had better get rid of those remnants of your cigar before anyone else sees you." Laughing, she hurried out to the kitchen.

Mr. Brown returned to the fireplace and stood before it, nervously biting his fingernails. The red glow of the flames lit up his features, which were strangely distorted with anger and impatience.

At regular intervals of about five minutes duration, he extracted his watch from his pocket and consulted it. Each time he grunted and muttered unintelligibly to himself. Perhaps he was indulging in profanity; one never knows what a man will do.

"Hey, Dad, you're going to get dizzy walking 'round and 'round the table like that! I'll bet you've worn out the rug!"

"What's that, young man? Have I been doing that? Well, I am a bit nervous, waiting for Pat. Will you call up and see if he has left yet? He was due long ago."

"O. K. Dad, but he's not that important in your life, is he?"

John, leaving the room, met Mary entering, and they grinned and exchanged knowing glances.

"Daddy, do you know that it takes sixty-five muscles to scowl and only thirteen to smile?"

"Nonsense, Mary, don't bother your poor old father when he is so worried. Go out on the porch and see if Pat is in sight yet."

A few minutes later, gathered around the dinner table, the family burst into laughter at the sight of Mr. Brown's tragic face.

"Here, here! Don't I get any sympathy around this house any more? I tell you, this suspense is terrible! I can't enjoy my meal until I find out what the outcome is. My dear people, can't you realize that I'm in mid-air and don't know if Dorothy Darling has been murdered or if the hero has saved her? It is a matter of life and death, and yet you sit and laugh at me." With a final roar, he got up from the table and stomped into the living room just as the door-bell pealed.

Mr. Brown flew to the door as if suddenly endowed with wings. He opened it, and Pat, the little news-

A New Code For Dixon High

A hitherto unthought-of code for the NRA, is a code of friendship for Dixon High School—F. F. P. Friendship For Fellow-sufferers.

What a much nicer school we would have if everyone at least gave the appearance of being friendly, even if they felt like the proverbial "sour grapes." Why couldn't all the students exchange a friendly word of greeting as they meet one another in the halls?

Nationality, color, wealth, clothes, personality, grades or personal "grudges" should make no difference, for Abraham Lincoln once said something to the effect that no man is ever truly great unless he has conquered all prejudices of color and nationality.

The F. F. P. code would have countless advantages. If certain people are mutually attracted to each other, merely by frequent encounters in classrooms and hall, this friendship code would tend to break the rules of propriety and allow them to speak to each other and thus become acquainted. Ote valuable and lifelong friendship have been formed in just such a manner.

Since we students are all brothers and sisters under the same roof and are here for the same general purpose—that of gaining an education—we have something in common, therefore we need not observe the rules of formality and retain our shyness and feeling of inferiority, but may act on a level with everyone else in measures of friendliness.

Some people possess a naturally reserved manner, as a result others are afraid to make advances of friendship toward them. A second type of student is that one who is too bold in his advances, and makes himself unbearable to those in contact with him. And yet another is the student, who has an inferiority complex, and feels subservient to others no better than he is. Why can we not strike a happy medium and all strive to follow an ideal of democracy, since our school is the product of a democratic nation?

A final advantage of this code would be the favorable impression given to visitors of our school. If they saw and felt the friendly atmosphere of the school, our fame would be spread far and wide. Do we, not have enough pride in our

THE RFC TURNS.

When President Herbert Hoover set up the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in January, 1932, as a federal arm to fight depression, the RFC was condemned as a request for the bankrupt. Few, save Hoover and Mellon, saw the time ahead when RFC would not alone pay for its existence but return a profit to the government. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation began where the overburdened National Credit Association left off. The National Credit Association was a voluntary credit pool subscribed by some New York and Chicago banks to help other banks.

The RFC set a high price on its rescue activities for two reasons. First, the Hoover administration had no planned economy notions. The RFC was created as an emergency institution. It charged 6 per cent from borrowers such as banks and railroads because it wanted to definitely discourage borrowing. Second, the RFC charged stiff interest rates because it was forced to assume stiff risks almost overnight. President Hoover was almost alone in his foresight that some day the RFC would be more of a revenue producer than a rescue agency. Later RFC rates were dropped from 6 to 5 per cent, and then 4 per cent in most cases.

History of the RFC has justified the Hoover plans. In the first nine months of this fiscal year $627,330,234 had been repaid on RFC loans, bringing in a handsome profit to the government in interest. Banks and other borrowers (principally the railroads) are repaying RFC loans at the rate of $3,000,000 a day. These payments are expected to top the billion-dollar mark by June 30 when the government's fiscal year ends.

So rapid has been repayment of RFC loans of late that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will fall nearly $2,000,000,000 under the budget figures for this fiscal year. This is attributed to decreased needs for funds, recovery's spread, and settlement of obligations everywhere. The first Roosevelt budget set up $3,969,740,000 for the RFC, but in the first nine months the RFC has only distributed $1,287,354,000—about 40 cents for every dollar budgeted for its use.

The railroads have taken the lead in returning their federal RFC help. The Pennsylvania in its last annual report showed that it has paid back the RFC loans with interest. The Union Pacific managed to reduce its funded debt $7,229,495 in 1933 by retirement of equipment trust notes. Even Dawes' ill-fated Central Republic loan of $90,000,000 has been liquidated down to $62,000,000.

Wise lending, even under emergency, has made the RFC a sound government investment. It has profited to an even greater degree than the Federal Reserve banks. Before the RFC closes shop, the nation will realize that Herbert Hoover planned wisely when he set about to rout depression through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It is the only depression agency which has begun to pay out.—Kewanee Star-Courier.

MORE AT WORK.

Frances Perkins' announcement that nearly 420,000 men were added to industrial payrolls during March, bringing the general employment index to its highest point since December, 1930, is the best news that has come out of Washington in a long time.

Encouraging as it is, however, we must take care not to let it make us over-confident.

Things are picking up and men are going back to work, but we haven't yet got out of the valley, and unemployment still exists. We need to remember that the drive for recovery cannot be relaxed, and that the care of the idle is still a pressing problem.

There were too many men out of work even as long ago as December, 1930. Employment levels must go a good deal higher than they are now, before we can begin to grow too loudly.

EQUALITY IN BRAINS.

Poor children are just as intelligent as rich children, according to Dr. Ethel Kavin, psychologist of the Institute for Juvenile Research in Chicago.

Dr. Kavin gave the well-known Stanford Binet and Merrill-Palmer intelligence tests to 62 children in a nursery school in Chicago's famous Hull House.

Then she gave the same tests to youngsters in a Winnetka public school nursery—youngsters from a considerably higher social and economic level.

And she found no difference in the average intelligence of the two groups.

The next time you hear someone lament that poor people have a higher birth rate than rich people, you might remember this fact.

The child of poor parents gets just as good an allotment of brains as the child of the rich, if this test is any criterion.

If the essence for a successful vampire is to leave the audience convinced of the inevitability of the conquest, Garbo wins top honors.—Theda Bara, famous "vamp" of the silent screen.

Kind Boy Blue said to Miss Bo Peep, "It makes me feel bad when you weep, I'm sorry your sheep strayed away. We'll find them pretty soon."

"The Tinymites have said that they will help us. Let's be on our way. Perhaps 'twill help a lot, if on my horn I play a tune."

"Oh, let me blow," said Duncy. "Gee, my lungs are strong as they can be. I'll bet I'll make your horn noise heard a dozen miles from here."

Once played in a toy shop band. The leader told me I was grand. "If you're that good," said Boy Blue, "it will hurt my ears, I fear."

"However, I will let you blow, but first of all we'd better go across the fields a little ways. The sheep are not in sight."

"Even though they'd hear, how would they know which way to turn and where to go? As soon as we can see them, you can blow with all your might."

Then, off all of the Tinies went. About a half an hour was spent in running over green pastures. Scouty said, "This is real fun."

"However, I am all tired out. Let's stop right here and gaze about. Then, if we need go farther, I will walk, instead of run."

The bunch sat down beneath a tree. Soon Duncy said, "Wait here for me. I'm going to hike to yonder hill and see what is in sight. It didn't take him very long. The others then thought something wrong. They saw wee Duncy turn around and run with all his might. In just a moment, fair Bo Peep cried, "Ah, the lad has found my sheep! And, look, one of them's chasing him. I see the others, too."

Then to poor Duncy Bo Peep cried, "Don't run! That sheep won't hurt your hide. He is a friendly fellow. He just wants to play with you."

PRESBYTERIANS OF ASHTON PLAN AN IMPROVEMENT

Addition to Building Was Decided Upon at Tuesday Meet

By MRS. E. TILTON

ASHTON—The Ashton Presbyterian church plan an addition to their church home, as the result of a congregational meeting held on Tuesday. The need for additional Sunday school class rooms has been felt for some time as well as a kitchen and room for serving church dinners. Plans for the proposed addition are now in the hands of Morrison H. Valle, Dixon architect. Mr. Valle will present his plans for the work at a congregational meeting the coming week, and very likely a building committee will be appointed to supervise the work.

Miss Inez Johnson will be hostess to the adult Sunday school class of the Evangelical Sunday school on May 2. This class, known as the William Workers, is a very active organization, and its meetings are always well attended. Assisting Miss Johnson as hostess will be Mrs. Edward Herwig, Mrs. R. O. The bride is well known in Ashton, and the groom is engaged in farming with his father near Paynes Point. The best wishes of their many friends follow them.

A change in the plans of these in Ashton scheduled for last Sunday morning, was necessitated by the illness of Mr. Albers who has had the handling of the pigeon flight from Ashton the past thirty years. To date, no definite arrangements have been made but the flight of 4,000 birds may be made on Sunday morning, last week's time was set at 7:00.

The Rev. G. Walters and D. N. Oester were appointed by the Evangelical conference, held at Au-rona the past week, to attend the annual board meeting of the Anti-Saloon League at Springfield, at Springfield on Friday.

A wedding of interest to many of our own and other communities was that of Miss Mirium Rosecrans, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rosecrans and Arthur Lamb on April 16 at Denver, Colo. The bride was graduated from Ashton high school in 1916 and was an instructor in the local schools for several years, later serving as a missionary in Panama, from where she went to Denver, entering as a student at the Denver University from which she received her Master's Degree. Bank Bandit Is Shot, Captured

HISTORY OF WATER SUPPLY

"THE WELL OF JOSEPH"

THIS WELL at Cairo is one of the most ingenious examples of an ancient public water supply. It is cut into solid rock for a depth of 150 feet. At this level the shaft is enlarged at one side to form a chamber, beneath which is the reservoir. Another shaft connects this reservoir with a bed of gravel where the ground water is tapped. The water is hoisted to the surface in iron pots connected by chains. These are propelled by machinery turned by oxen and horses, who are led to the well bottom by means of a spiral ramp.

Local legend attributes this well to the famous Old Testament character for whom it is named, but careful research has dated it from the Twelfth Century, A. D. For its time it is an amazing work of engineering, but it is, of course, clumsy and primitive compared to the modern water system that supplies our own city.

IF BANK DEPOSITORS Did the Lending

There is a great deal of newspaper criticism of bankers today for not lending more freely—money which belongs largely to their depositors.

Suppose the banker should say to his depositors, "I am tired of being criticized. You decide for yourselves to whom your money shall be loaned—how much of it, and for how long!"

Would the depositors be more liberal—or would they be even more cautious than good bankers are today?

Every banker wants all the good, safe loans he can get—but he will not accept any which do not measure up to his standards of safety. Protection of his depositors' interests comes first, always.

REYNOLDS AND TRAYNOR LEAD MAJOR HITTERS

First Compilation of the Averages for Season Published

New York, April 28.—(AP)—After a week and a half of the usual early season variety of clouting, Harold (Pie) Traynor of Pittsburgh and Carl Reynolds of Boston's Red Sox today were established as the leading batters of the two major leagues.

Traynor, with a .556 average, led the National League field by over 100 points, but Reynolds, topping the American League at .455, was closely pursued by a teammate, Bill Werber, the first semi-official compilation of the batting records revealed today.

Besides the pace-setting veterans, Traynor and Reynolds, the list of leaders included such old standbys as Babe Ruth and Bill Dickey of the Yankees, Dick Perrell of the Red Sox, Hack Wilson of Brooklyn, Freddy Lindstrom of the Pittsburgh, Chuck Klein, of the Cubs, and Mel Ott of the Giants. Only two first year men, Zerk Bonura of the White Sox and Len Konecne of the Dodgers, held places among the "first ten." The most notable absentee was Jimmie Fox, last year's American League champion.

Klein, champion batsman a year ago, led his league in four departments with ten runs, 12 runs batted in, 15 hits and four homers. Werber, with 16 hits, eight of them doubles, and Reynolds with 12 runs batted in and two triples, were the only double leaders in the American League's slugging departments.

The leading ten batters in each major league follow:

DASHBACH HEADS CITY SOFT BALL LOOP THIS YEAR

Six Teams Applied for Membership at Organization Meeting

The meeting of the city league of soft ball club was held last evening at the Millway Hatchery with seven teams being represented and entering the circuit. Officers who were elected to serve for the coming year are as follows:

President—Frank Dashbach
Secretary—Robert Hargrave
Treasurer—Thurke Swain

Teams filing their applications for entry in the city league were as follows: Reynolds Wire Co., Brady Villagers, Bordens, Wink's Specials, A. & P. Stores, Brown, Shoe Co. and the National Tea. Further applications will be received up until Thursday evening of next week when it will be determined the number of teams and the size of the league to be started. Provided that eight clubs are registered, all will be included in one league and an attempt will be made to play all of the games under the new electric flood light system at the Dixon Municipal Airport.

In the event that the number of entries exceed that amount, it is possible that two league of six teams each will be formed.

The league will be governed by the new rules adopted by the National Softball association. President Dashbach has called another meeting to be held at the Dixon & Dashbach bowling alleys Thursday evening of next week at 7:30 at which time the schedule will be drafted and final arrangements for the launching of the 1934 season will be decided.

Managers and players expressed a desire to play at least half of the schedule on grounds located within the city limits, but the fact that none are accessible this season for the opening of the season, resulted in the decision to play all games at the airport lighted field. Softball fields are included in the extensive plans for the improvement of the Reynolds athletic field in the west section of the city, but sent indications point to their not being available for some time in the future, it was stated.

Sportmanship Proven Great Benefit To All

A creditable thing to any high school or to any individual is good sportmanship. A school is known not always by its outstanding team but is spoken of by other schools in connection with its sportmanship.

A single definition can not be given for sportmanship, for it involves many different things. In the first place good sportmanship consists of the cooperation of every student in any project undertaken for the benefit of the school. It means fair play on the part of the players in games and the whole-hearted support of the student body, whether the game is won or lost.

Dixon High School has shown excellent sportmanship throughout the year in the various activities. The teams have not only proven their good sportmanship in their games, but the backers of the teams have proven that we are back of good winners and losers.

A recent example of our sportmanship was in the election held at the high school. All those who participated were good sports in all the campaigns and elections. Those who were defeated took their defeats like good citizens should.

If Dixon High School continues with its good sportmanship, it will have a record to be proud of, among schools.

THE original Ferris wheel, invented by George W. G. Ferris, had 36 cars, each of 60-passenger capacity, and was 264 feet high. The Farmer Labor party emanated from the National Labor party, formed in 1919. Its first presidential candidate was Parley P. Christensen of Utah, who received 255,411 votes. Prof. Michelson won the Nobel award for his work in the study of light.

Lon Got Better
With the Cubs trailing in the latter stage of a struggle between Carlton and Lonnie Warneke, Chuck smacked a base hit, advanced to third on Babe Herman's single and scored while George Stainback was grounding out. As Warneke went on to pitch hitless ball for the last four innings of the overtime contest, he gained his third triumph. Gabby Hartnett and Kiki Cuyler got together to produce the winning tally. Cuyler, leaving the bench for the first time after Stainback hurt a foot in the tenth, smacked a single on the first pitch he saw. Manager Charley Grimm sent him to second with a sacrifice. Then after Billy Jurgens had been intentionally passed, Hartnett drove in the winning counter with a single, his first hit in 13 times up.

Buster Mills, rookie Cardinal outfielder, hit safely his first three times at bat to run up a string of seven straight blows before he was halted in the ninth inning.

SCHOOLS EXIST FOR CHILDREN NOT TEACHERS

Students Should Obtain Best Knowledge Possible

Children must remain silent upon their own grave concern. I have in mind the schools. Schools exist for the benefit of children and sometimes it seems as though they were the last people who counted in the matter, if indeed, they count at all.

Lately I have listened to many stories told by troubled fathers and mothers. Their boys and girls, particularly the boys, did not want to go to school. They could not get high grades in their studies and they got plenty of blame from their teachers, their friends, and their families. In self-defense, they were leaving home.

"Tell me," said one of the fathers, "how can I make this boy go to school where he can sit in quiet for hours patiently trying to do what is not in him to do? He can't do algebra, and he can't learn French. He likes to draw, make plans, and work with wood and metal. We have persuaded him to stay on another term, holding out the promise of work in the shops and along comes an order to close some days in the classroom, sitting, wondering and wishing they were anywhere else. Tell me, what can parents do with such boys? We can't send them to work. There is no work. We want them to go to school but school won't help them in the way they can be helped. What is the use of forcing boys to go to school when you give them nothing when they get there. It's beyond me. My boy has left home and what is the reason? What is to be done. I ask you?"

This is no time to drive boys out of school and home. It's the time to hold them there by every means in your power.

The activities of school must include hand-work, creative work that calls for thought and skill and completeness. The book is necessary, of course, but it must be adjusted to the needs of the boys and girls. When it becomes the only activity a great group of children are alienated from school and from home. They join the army of wanderers.

The schools must serve children or fail in their specific mission. Any citizen that has a grudge against the industrial teachers and campaign against the shops because they cost money, is cheating children and doing his country an irreparable injury.

The book master who loves the classics and scorns the activities of labor is cheating a great group of children and youths, and does his community an ill turn.

The teacher who hates noise and uncertainty and personal expression of choice and work, and consequently lends his weight to the side of uniformity and acquiescence, is disloyal to his profession and to the great trust that has been placed in him.

The schools are not primarily to serve the taxpayer, the influential citizen, the teacher with his pet ideas, but the CHILDREN themselves. The school, if it is to endure must serve all the children of all people without fear or favor. Schools are for the children, silent sufferers in this troubled day.

—D. C. Austin.

Plum Hollow Golf Club Opens Sunday

The formal opening of the Plum Hollow golf club will be observed Sunday. The general public is invited to visit the popular course north of the city on state highway route 26 and inspect the greens. Ted Talty, who will act as pro at the club again this year, with his force of assistants have the course in excellent condition. Work is progressing rapidly on the new clubhouse.

DIXON'S SEWAGE DISPOSAL A PRESENT PROBLEM

Most towns and cities in the United States use the same type of sewage disposal as Dixon. However, the fact that it is common does not in any way free it from the inherent disadvantages that go along with it. There is one marked tendency, and that is for the cities to replace this type of disposal with the more sanitary disposal plants. Dixon is one of those towns which are seriously considering the installation of one of these modern devices.

Our system in Dixon is one which uses the river as the means of sewage disposal. This method necessarily causes the pollution of the river and the subsequent death of the fish in the stream. This fact alone is enough to condemn this system in the eyes of most people, but there are also the dangers to the health of the people that served to put it in disrepute. Especially in periods of low water the hazards of the impure river water are apparent.

To overcome the hazards of this undesirable situation, plans for a disposal plant have been drawn up. At present there are two alternate plans to be considered. One of the plans is to use a "digesting tank" and filtration beds. The other plan is to use the airtight process and the filtration.

The cost of this project has been estimated at about $235,000. Through the present relief measures of the Federal government, thirty per cent of the cost would be provided and the other seventy per cent could also be obtained from the government for four per cent interest. By the method of assessment that will probably be used, the city will be able to pay back the borrowed money within thirty years.

It would be very much to the advantage to the city if this project were done at the present time because the aid of the government could be had very easily. On the other hand if the people wait and hold up the project, the aid from the government will not be had. The main question is to decide when we are to put in this disposal plant because we will sooner or later be forced to establish one by the State. In the permit which the city had to obtain before sewage could be dumped into the river, there is a clause stating that the city would cooperate to the fullest extent if the order should come to clean up the river. This order seems forthcoming in the near future because the organizations and people are becoming in the near future because the organizations and people are becoming stirred up against this type of disposal.

Not only would it be to an economic advantage to the city to install such a plant in near future but it would also uphold the reputation of the town as being progressive and modern.

JUNIOR CITIZENSHIP A STEP IN WORLD PROGRESS

Training Future Voters Today Makes Good Citizens

The law states that the citizens of tomorrow, do not have complete right of voters until we are twenty one years of age, and the time to learn how to become a good citizen should be taught while we are still in high school.

Good citizenship comes through education, not legislation as many people think. A person who is taught the fundamentals of good citizenship in school has these thoughts instilled in his mind, instead of some criminal thought which may be lodged there by inheritance or from examples he may have observed in his surroundings. A person who is given a chance for a good education, which they child is entitled to, has little time to wonder how to spend his time, but is learning how to mix and act while in the company of other people. This is a great assistance when a person goes into the world to earn his own livelihood, because he must be able to take his place in society, and make himself proud not only for himself, but for all persons with whom he comes in contact with.

A good citizen is a person who has respect for himself, and if he has this respect he will have a greater respect for others, which is needed very extensively today. To have respect for one's self he must have respect for mind and body alike. This can only be had by leading a clean, healthful and honest life, which is hard at times but always pays. A person who has these fine characteristics will learn how much they mean to him and will try to help someone else to become a law abiding citizen and have greater respect for his associates.

If we should look over the records of the criminals of today we would find that very few of them were educated, as a result they have very little respect for themselves or family's, and have no respect for other persons rights. This is not only true of our notorious criminals but also of the younger generation who have been allowed to quit school. Then finding nothing else to do have turned to the life of a future criminal, as an occupation.

If the true citizens of today wish to stop the crime wave they should not start at the base where the trade is learned and remedy it, instead of trying to make good citizens out of those who are already criminals. It is just as hard to do that, as to try to teach an old dog a new trick, but it is very easy to teach a young dog good tricks which will make him an honorable, progressive and active citizen of tomorrow.

If every person will keep these few simple facts in mind, there will be more true citizens of the world and not as many criminals.

—James Ramsey

Training for Citizenship an Advantage

With our changing economic and social order new tasks and responsibilities confront the citizen of tomorrow. It is the duty of the school to accept and meet the challenge. We must arm the youth of to-day not just with factual information but that backed up with high ideals and a keen desire to participate in governmental affairs.

It is generally granted that the primary purpose of education is citizenship. There are many agencies which contribute to the education of a child; the home, church, school, community centers, industrial and philanthropic organizations. To the extent that each of these exerts an influence to that extent undoubtedly they will receive a return.

In training boys and girls for citizenship we should have as our chief aims: (1) Preparation for a useful occupation (2) Ability to take an intelligent part in a democratic government. All school courses contribute directly or indirectly toward the first. Social sciences courses deal more particularly with the second. In these courses we must consider first the inculcation of high ideals, then the student must become familiar with the organization and characteristic features of our various units of government. But if we do not go farther we will appeal only to the students who are theorists and idealists. It is possible to go farther and give them a chance to participate in the affairs of the community, even though the time granted is very short.

The laboratory method of instruction has been used for years in physics and chemistry. The time has come when educators throughout the country are realizing that this method must be used in the social science courses. Only by actual participation can the success of democratic government be assured. To quote Dr. Sugallo, "Action is the goal of civics teachings."

The Molly Maguires

The Molly Maguires were members of an Irish secret society organized in 1843. They dressed in women's clothes, blackened their faces, or otherwise disguised themselves, to prey upon agents employed to enforce the payment of rent. A similar secret society in the mining districts of Pennsylvania was known by the same name about 1877.

WHY HISTORY?

On the corner of First Street and Peoria Avenue there is a building which has a marker inscribed with the words, "Site of John Dixon's Tavern." Could anyone, not too familiar with the marker to pay any attention to it, fail to wonder why that marker should be there? Who was John Dixon? Why should the location of his tavern be of any importance? Then, passing the statue of Lincoln down on the river front, we are told that this portrays the Emancipator as a young man, when he volunteered for the Blackhawk War. Lincoln? The Blackhawk War? Why build "statues to Lincoln? What was the Blackhawk War?

There is only one way to find the answers to all these questions—by referring to history. Every person, every building, every village and city has its history and, few of us should be willing to have that history destroyed. One of the commonest criticisms of history as a school subject is that it has, seemingly, no connection with present day life, but is merely a student of the dead past. Yet if we stop to consider we must realize that everything in our present day life, even our own names and personalities, are the result of forces going back into history. Everything happening in the world today is the result of happenings of years ago. We are now building the historical background upon which future generations will base their civilizations. Should we use the mistakes and triumphs of the past in guiding our local, national and international destinies, or shall we ignore all that man has learned in the past seven thousands years? To leave out history from our store of knowledge would be to ignore all man's former greatness and to start over again with each generation.

your friends who will note your efforts to acquit yourselves with credit and commendable dignity.

"We acquire the strength that we overcome," is quoted from a grammar formerly used here. It is that sentence lies the measure of the benefits you will derive from your experiences of the day. You will realize the contributions of a large and honored group, now asleep, each of whom left behind a secret mark in this community, just as you are now endeavoring to do. The sum total of these contributions for a city's welfare, plus the earnestness and the sincerity of those who now live in our midst, reveal unmistakably the high level of our heritage of the years.

Guard it ever, and well, my friends.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are trapeze performers with Denton's circus. Donna's parents, also circus performers, are dead. Five years earlier Madeline ran away from the middle-western farm where her grandfather, AMOS SIDDAL, lives.

CON DAVID, the animal trainer, is in love with Donna who regards him merely as a friend. Madeline is in love with Con. When Madeline's grandfather writes, asking her to spend the week-end at his farm near Lebanon, where the circus is playing, she persuades Donna to take her place. Thus it is Donna (pretending to be the other girl) who meets BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, and goes to dinner with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

IN the moonlight the road was like a silver ribbon uncoiling with amazing rapidity. A heavy perfume drenched the night air; a perfume made of green things growing, of fruit orchards, wild flowers and the moist fragrance of newly turned earth. Though the Sidal farm was but five miles from Lebanon on the main road, Bill had chosen a longer, more circuitous route.

The car was a battered one, badly in need of paint, but Donna, her hat in her lap, rested her head against the faded felt upholstery and drank to the night air with keen enjoyment.

"That's the Trager place," Bill said. "Do you remember the Tragers? Jim was at school with me." And a little later Donna murmured, "I'm glad there's a late train Monday. One of the girls is going to ride in my place in the parade."

"We might have asked your partner to come along," Bill suggested. "I didn't think of it. Did she think it was strange we didn't ask her?"

Donna felt a queer little stab in her heart. "She almost did come," she said slowly recalling the scene in the dressing room when Madeleine with a sudden change of mind, had decided that Bill Sidal looked interesting enough to risk a visit home. But for Con David's jealousy Donna might have remained with the circus and Madeline gone to the farm. However, Con had appeared and to pique Donna (at least he had hoped to do so) had invited Madeline to have supper with him and Madeline had accepted the invitation.

"Your grandfather may be in bed," Bill said as he turned the car into a road only a little wider than a cowpath. "If he is, we won't wake him. He's mighty feeble these days and needs all the sleep he can get. Your coming will be a red-letter day in his life. You don't know how much he cares about you."

SHE had a sudden impulse to tell him the truth then, an impulse she crushed instantly for the headlights of the car brought into stark outline the narrow, austere brick building which was the Sidal farmhouse.

"There's Grandpop," said Bill. "I reckon the excitement of seeing you again kept him awake." He called, "Hello there!" and the old man waved his hand.

Before the car came to a stop at the front porch Donna had an opportunity to look at her host. He was tall and very erect. His snow white hair curled slightly and touched the collar of the dressing gown that clung to his gaunt figure.

"You've changed," Mrs. Planter said to the girl. "I wouldn't have known you."

"Did Madeline come?" the old man asked as Bill sprinted up the three steps to his side.

"Here she is!" Bill beckoned to Donna who was just behind him. "Grandfather," she whispered huskily. "Grandfather."

Groping garbled hands reached for her; old arms enfolding her "Maddie, my little Maddie." The girl pressed her face against his shoulder, hoping he would not notice how fast her heart was beating. "I've wanted you for such a long time and now I can't even see you."

"I know," she choked, tears in her throat. "Bill told me—you are blind. Oh, I'm so sorry, so sorry!" "That's all right, Maddie," he answered, patting her curls with trembling affectionate fingers. "I'm old and affliction doesn't matter so much to an old feller. Only I've missed you and wanted you. But there, there! We're not going to be sad for the little time you are here. There must be a heap you've got to tell me and a heap more I want to know. Come in side. Mrs. Planter laid out some supper for you."

In books Donna had read of just such a room—quiet, homely in artistic, but containing something between the four walls that she had longed for all her life. There were rocking chairs with lace squares on their backs, a "whatnot" in the corner with china bric-a-brac on its shelves, a reading lamp beside a stand holding a huge family Bible. On the big center table a vase of purple and white lilacs stood and beneath a napkin the supper was laid out. Donna's glance rested upon an enlarged photograph on the wall, the picture of a small girl with long, fair, curling hair and wide, questioning eyes. Madeline, of course.

"It doesn't look much like you now," Bill said.

THE old man's faltering steps led him to the chair beside the Bible. "Maybe you don't hold with prayer now Maddie," he said, but I want to thank God that He sent you to me before the call came." "Oh Grandfather!" she cried. She dropped on her knees beside him, feeling suddenly that this was her home, this old man, whose feet touched the precipice of death, was her relative. "Oh, Grandfather!"

In the midst of the simple prayer a door opened and the housekeeper, Mrs. Planter, came into the room. Instantly the spell vanished. Donna felt the antagonism of the woman. Though Mrs. Planter's thin lips parted in a smile, though she extended her hand in cordial greeting, her pale eyes between white lashes informed Donna she was not welcome.

"I reckon you find your grandpa changed a lot," she said. "He's been falling fast this past year and you've changed too. Yes, you've changed. I wouldn't have known you."

"Five years make changes in every one," Donna answered bravely. "You oughta to be in bed, Amos."

rasped Mrs. Planter. "Mebbe young folks can miss their rest and not feel it, but you'll be sick tomorrow if you stay up any longer."

Obediently Grandfather rose. "Emmie is right. You eat your supper, Maddie, and go to bed so's you can get up bright and early. Bill will show you your room." He kissed her forehead and then permitted the housekeeper to lead him out of the room.

There was a taut silence when Bill and Donna found themselves alone once more. Then he coughed and crossed to the door. "I'll put the car away," he said abruptly. Impulsively she exclaimed, "How sweet he is!"

"He's always been the salt of the earth," Bill answered coldly. "How you could have picked up and run away is more than I've ever been able to fathom. It puzzles me more since I've met you."

Bill looked at her and the steady gaze of his candid gray eyes said more than words. Then he left the room. Five minutes later when he returned she was sitting at the table but she had not touched the food. "I'll show you to your room," he said.

OVER a bowl of chili con carne Madeline winked at Con David, with no thoughts for her partner nor her aged relative. Con's handsome face held no answering smile. Already he regretted the invitation prompted by his jealousy. Madeline might be as pretty and attractive as Donna but she bored him.

"Snap out of it, Con," she said. "It's not very complimentary to have you sitting there so gloomy. You ought to know anyway that you don't stand ace high with Donna."

"How do you know I don't?" "She's told me. She wouldn't marry a performer no matter how much she loved him."

"She'll marry me," Madeline laughed sharply. "Says you! No, she won't. She's crazy for a home and children. It wouldn't surprise me if she and Bill Sidal made a go of it."

"You said he was her cousin. Cousins can't marry."

Madeline's eyes half-closed. "Don't believe everything you're told, Con. I had to protect her, didn't I?"

He sprang to his feet. "Then she didn't go to her grandfather's?" "Of course not." Sudden fear that she had implied too much made Madeline add, "For heaven's sake, don't spread it! You know Kenroff and if he found out about it he might fire us both."

"Listen, Con!" she said tensely when they were on the street. "You misunderstood me. You've got to give me your word to keep this under your hat, but Donna isn't my sister and the man she went to visit is my grandfather, not her. She did go out to the farm and—"

"I don't give a hang what she did or where she went!" the trainee answered morosely. "There's going to be a showdown Monday. She'll either marry me then or—"

"Or—" breathlessly. "I'll marry the first woman who'll have me."

Killed in Accident

Mrs. Rose Lookingland received word that her nephew Frank C. Goetzberger had been killed in an auto accident Monday afternoon. The accident occurred three miles east of Claremore, Okla., on Monday afternoon in a three-way collision on a state highway. According to one eye witness from Tulsa, Okla., the deceased attempted to pass a gasoline truck when he faced three convey cars with trailers close upon him, and attempted to turn his car back in the line of traffic. In doing this, his car sideswiped the truck and one of the approaching machines. Full details are not yet available.

With two other companions, John Weiden of Preepoot and Russell H. Wland he figured in an automobile accident Sunday at Waco, Texas in which three persons from Dallas, Tex., were killed. In this accident Heiden was charged with negligence as reported, but later the case was dismissed.

"Frankie" as he was known to his friends, was born in Franklin Grove, twenty-two years ago, in March. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goetzberger. His father died several years ago. His mother later became Mrs. H. E. Zugschwerdt and resides at Chardwick, Ill. The young men spent his early boyhood in this town and visited very often at the home of his grandparents, the later Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goetzberger. He graduated from the high school at Chardwick and entered the University of Illinois at Champaign. He was a member of the university band three years, specializing in saxophone playing, but was very apt with several other instruments. He was a member of an orchestra composed of college students and made several long tours with this organization. At the time of his death he was a member of the Glenn Lee orchestra. He met his death on his way home to visit his mother at Chardwick.

Funeral services were held in Chardwick Friday afternoon, with burial in the local cemetery beside his father. The entire community is extending very tender sympathy to the bereaved mother, who was beloved by all when she lived in our midst.

Legion Auxiliary

The local auxiliary unit of Alton Post of the American Legion is holding its meetings regularly again the second Wednesday afternoon in each month. The last meeting was with Mrs. Hannah Conlon and the next one will be with Mrs. Nellie Stewart on May 9. Anyone eligible to membership is invited to attend the meetings. The aim in continuing the unit is not with the idea of what may be gained from it, but what may be done for hospitalized soldiers who are still bearing the marks of the World War. One of the things which can be done is to supply them with materials which keeps them busy with hand work, and thus take up some of the time which otherwise would seem endless. So we are still sewing rags, and any materials suitable for carpet rags will be acceptable. Notify or leave with Mrs. Aurelia Spangler.

Weds in Denver

The following item will be of interest to the readers of this column as the bride is very well known in this community.

A very quiet wedding took place in Denver, Colo., Wednesday, April 18, when Miss Miriam Rosecrans of that city, formerly of Ashton, became the bride of Arthur Lamb, also of Denver. The wedding ceremony took place at the home of the bride just before the noon hour, the single ring ceremony being read by Dr. Lough. The couple were unattended, and following the ceremony enjoyed a wedding lunch prepared at the home.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rosecrans of Ashton, and graduated in 1916 from that local school, where later she was engaged for several years as instructor. After serving as a missionary in Panama she went to Denver, Colo., where she received her Master's Degree at Denver University.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamb expect to leave in two weeks for a trip through the south and will reach Ashton some time in June.

Mayor and Mrs. George L. Spangler and daughter Wanda Marie motored to Springfield Thursday and returned Friday.

John A. Maronde, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Maronde of this place was united in marriage Wednesday to Miss Gladys Moser also of this place. Friends are extending hearty congratulations.

Living Our Everyday Lives

Men With Wings

Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

A famous poet has portrayed in a painting of four panels, the slow rise of man from the animal to the angel shape, which is both a picture and a parable of the strange story of our race.

The first panel shows us animals killing man as their prey, man a fear-haunted victim of the beast. In the second panel we see man killing animals for food, shaping weapons of wood and stone and iron.

In the third panel, alas, man is killing man in war, staining the earth with his ther-blood; man more cruel than beast. In the last panel man is growing wings by which he is raised into a higher life.

Let us hope that at last, after ages of war, man is passing out of the third into the fourth panel of the picture. If he has not grown wings on his back, he has learned to make wings and fly the sky.

But order to make wings he had to have wings in his mind, which may be what Plato meant long ago when he said that the finer thoughts of the race are but the pricking and prodding of wings growing.

An old Chinese poet once dreamed that he was a butterfly, and thereafter he walked the earth a bewildered man. He could never be sure, he said, whether he was really a man who had dreamed that he was a butterfly, or a butterfly dreaming that he was a man with wings.

Are we not all in the same dilemma as the old poet, wondering whether we are men in mere bodies of flesh, dreaming that we have souls, or immortal spirits dreaming that we have bodies of flesh?

An old Greek myth the butterfly was the image of the soul, as if man felt from the first that he was made to fly. The Sufi poets had for an emblem a human heart with wings on it; symbol of the swifter sympathies of man as he emerges from his lower to his higher life.

Poets, saints and prophets in all ages have lived in the faith that "our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting," and that we shall awake one day to find that the solid, sor-did reality was in some sort only a dream, and that our divinest dreams are only reality.

TREATING PIMPLES

To clear the skin of pimples or, as this condition is designated, of acne, is no simple task. Scrupulous cleanliness and perseverance in treatment are essential to success.

To begin with, the sufferer's personal hygiene, and particularly his diet and dietetic habits, must be scrutinized and corrected wherever they are defective. Too many are inclined to consider pimples as merely a local skin blemish, forgetting that the skin is deeply affected by the constitution and the working of the other body organs.

The sufferer should obey the common rules of good, personal hygiene.

gience—regular hours, plenty of sleep, exercise in the open, simple diet.

Fruits and vegetables should have a prominent place and he should avoid stimulants, such as tea, coffee and alcohol.

In local treatment, the affected parts should be washed thoroughly with hot water and soap. If the skin is not too tender, and when it is rough, a gentle pumice stone soap may be used.

When the skin has been so washed, it should be dried and alcohol applied. If the pimples are large and numerous and contain much pus, it may become desirable to open them as they "ripen." The technique for doing this should be learned from your physician, who will also prescribe a lotion to be applied to the skin after the pus evacuation has been accomplished.

Certain cases of acne benefit by treatment with ultra-violet irradiation. This, too, must be administered under medical supervision, except when the irradiation is taken in the form of sunbath on the beach or in the open country. Precaution should be taken against excessive burning.
